

It is announced that an important conference was held this week in London between the commission sent to Europe by the President and the members of the British Cabinet. The subject discussed was that of calling an international conference and the British members were non-committal, giving no indication of what they intended to do.

The advocates of the single gold standard proclaimed from the platform and through the press in the last Presidential campaign that our credit and prosperity as a nation depended upon maintaining the single gold standard and that free coinage was simply and solely an attempt on the part of silver miners to get fifty cents worth of silver coined into a dollar. If the gold men were right then and a great many good people professed to believe that they were, why do those gold advocates now send a commission to Europe to get the governments of England, France and Germany to assist in impairing our credit, and retarding the wave of prosperity which they tell us is now sweeping over the country?

Bimetallism, that is the use of gold and silver money, is a good thing for the country or it is not. If it is good, and even the gold men now admit that it is or they would not be sending special commissioners to Europe to urge its adoption, why does not the Government adopt it at once without waiting for the consent of any foreign nation? If it is not a good thing for the country why send emissaries to Europe at the public expense to get European nations to permit us to adopt it? If, as the goldbugs told us, bimetallism will give us fifty-cent dollars, why ask Europe to give us permission to coin such dollars?

Is it not time that our gold friends tired of this international monetary conference humbuggery? If what they say would result from bimetallism is true it should not be adopted under any circumstances, and if it is not true and bimetallism would benefit the country, why not set our mints to coining silver at once without waiting for the consent of any other nation?

It is plainly apparent that our gold friends are not acting in good faith in this matter. They know full well that England will not consent to have our mints opened to silver. It is deriving too much profit from the single gold standard to sanction bimetallism. It gets its interest on our bonds in gold and it buys our cotton, corn and pork at a much less price than if silver was remonetized. Aware of these facts it will not consent to have us coin our silver bullion into legal tender money, and if our Government was not dominated by English influences it would open the mints to silver without asking permission of England or any other foreign country. This country is capable of managing its domestic affairs and regulating its finances without foreign aid or interference, as will be readily proved when we elect a President and a Congress that will not be owned by the trusts and money power, as it is but reasonable to hope we will do at the next election.

The plan suggested immediately after election of building a private car to cost $100,000 for President McKinley has been abandoned. The causes are hard times and the feeling that under the present strained relations between the railroad corporations and the people wrong motives might be attributed to the gift. The President will, therefore, for the present at least, have to ride in the cars provided for the public, unless some railroad magnate tenders him the use of his private car.

The Cuban General Rivera has been removed from Cabanas Fortress to the military hospital of San Ambrosio, in Havana. He is said to be comfortably quartered in the room of an officer. The Cubans in Havana declare that Rivera has been poisoned by the Spaniards, who dare not kill him openly for fear of public indignation in the United States.

MEETINGS of coal miners are being held in every district in Pennsylvania. The miners fear wholesale evictions from their houses and intimate that any attempt to drive them from their homes will be followed by serious trouble. The coal companies own the ground on which the miners' cabins are built and will probably try to drive them off the land.

The total number of standard dollars coined under the various Acts of Congress is $451,998,742, or about six dollars and a half per capita. If the coinage of those dollars was doubled, so as to average thirteen dollars per capita, the country would not have to much silver for ordinary business transactions.

WOMEN cannot vote, consequently the heaviest tariff on woollens has been placed on women's and children's dress goods. The ladies should continue the battle for their suffrage if they desire equal rights from the tariff tinkers.

Nor a Republican of national reputation attended the national convention of Republican Leagues at Detroit. The leaders of the party are not committing themselves just now.

OF INTEREST TO NEVADA:
Items in the Tariff Bill That Directly Concern This State.
(Special Correspondence)
WASHINGTON, D. C., July 6, 1897.
The Dingley bill has passed the Senate by a vote of 88 to 28. Quite a number of Populists and silver Republicans refrained, for various reasons, from voting, the chief reason being that their vote was not needed to pass the bill. These Senators claimed that tariff will not restore prosperity, and hold that the free coinage of silver is the only remedy for the present stagnation of business. They were willing, however, that the tariff bill should pass in order to give the country another object lesson, and show the American people that a high tariff, such as the present bill is, will have no more effect in restoring confidence and trade than did the Wilson bill in 1894.

Tariff bills have been framed to protect the manufacturers of the finished product and not give any protection whatever to American labor. The northeastern manufacturers have contended from the beginning that they had a right to buy in a free trade market and sell in a protected market; that everything produced by American labor in the fields and in the mine was raw material and ought to be put in competition with the coolie labor of Asia. The Senate amendments to the tariff bill are a partial exception to the rule that American labor in the field and in the mine has no rights which the manufacturers are bound to respect.

The Nevada Senators took a conspicuous part in the framing and passage of the tariff bill and were able to secure protection for the products of Nevada, and also to reduce the tariff on cyanide of potassium and other chemicals which are largely used in treating low grade gold ores, which reduction will now enable many mines, formerly unprofitable to work, to be developed and operated with profit. Attention is called to the following items of Senate amendments which were attached to the tariff bill which mete out partial justice to the west, and are of especial interest to the citizens of Nevada.

Borax, five cents per pound.
Soda ash, three-eighths of one cent per pound; arsenate of soda, one and one-fourth cents per pound.

Bi-carbonate of soda, or supercarbonate of soda, or saleratus, and other alkalis containing fifty per centum or more of bi-carbonate of soda, three-fourths of one cent per pound.

Cyanide of potassium, 12½ cents per pound ad valorem, which is a reduction of one-half from the tariff on this necessity for gold mining.
Sulphur, or brimstone, crude, fifty cents per ton, refined or sublimed, or flowers of, eight dollars per ton.

Lead bearing ore of all kinds, one and one-half cent per pound on the lead contained therein.

Nickel ore, three cents per pound on the nickel contained therein, nickel matte, four cents per pound for the nickel contained therein, nickel, nickel oxide, alloy of any kind in which nickel is the component material of chief value, eight cents per pound.

The duty on wool of the first class is ten cents per pound and on second class wool eleven cents per pound. The duty on wool of the third class, lowest grade, is four cents per pound. This is better protection, taking it all in all, than the McKinley bill gave.

Hides, of cattle, raw or uncurd, whether dry, salted or pickled, twenty per cent ad valorem.

Apples, peaches, currants, quinces, cherries, plums and pears, green or ripe, twenty-five cents per bushel.

The Nevada Senators were not quite satisfied with the rates above given. They are very well so far as they go, but there ought to be no duty whatever on cyanide of potassium. While the tariff bill was in Committee of the Whole Senator Stewart made a strong fight to put cyanide of potassium on the free list and lost it by only one vote, but when the bill finally came up in the Senate he was able to have the duty reduced from twenty-five per cent ad valorem to 12½ per cent ad valorem by a majority of two.

In regard to hides and wool there ought to have been a duty of at least fifty per cent ad valorem on hides and an additional duty of about 33½ per cent on wool, but the strong opposition of the New England Senators made it impossible to secure a higher duty than was obtained. The tariff of fifty cents a ton on sulphur is also inadequate, as there ought to be from two to three dollars a ton duty on sulphur in order to make its production profitable.

Taking the bill as a whole, however, it is much better than any tariff bill heretofore passed, so far as recognition of Western products are concerned, that the people ought to take courage and feel that the time will come when the tariff bill will be so modified as to avoid the inequitable discriminations which have hitherto existed.

Great credit is due Senators Stewart and Jones for their activity in behalf of the interests of the State of Nevada. They have been on duty all the time and have taken advantage of their opportunity to benefit the industries of their State.

The tariff bill is now in conference between the two Houses. What the probable action upon the Senate amendments will be can hardly be predicted. But one thing is certain, the Senators from the West will strenuously oppose any reduction in the duty on wool, hides, lead ore, borax and soda. The belief seems to prevail here in Washington that the items above enumerated in which the West is so much interested will be agreed to with but little modification.

SUBTERRANEAN GALLERIES.

One-Third of Paris Built Over Long Underground Ways.

That recent concert in the catacombs has drawn attention to the fact that one-third at least of the city of Paris is built over long labyrinthian galleries, deep under the earth's surface, and called "The Quarries," says a Paris correspondent. Parisians are periodically frightened when they hear this, and begin to look forward to the sudden collapse of their high houses. M. Vickersheimer, however, who is "inspector of catacombs and quarries," hastens to assure the timid that there is no fear of any subsidence of the soil of subterranean Paris. The galleries are well propped up and are continually under the supervision of vigilant persons, chiefly policemen, who on their off-duty days are paid five francs for inspection walks through the shafts, which extend under ground in nearly every direction. Any signs of decay or damage on the vaultings or pillars are promptly reported to the proper authorities, who instantly bring their repairing machinery into play. According to classification, the first group of galleries begins under the Arc de Triomphe, extending in the direction of Passy and Auteuil. The second division runs under the Vauguard district, and includes the catacombs, which are so called because the bones from old cemeteries were placed there in 1776. The third branch of subterranean arteries is situated under the boulevard of the hospital and extends to the fortifications, and the fourth runs from the Bastille toward Vincennes wood. The fifth and last group, that of the north, is the most important, and is pierced under Montmartre, the Buttes Chaumont and the cemetery of Pere-la-Chaise and extends out to Noisy-le-See. It is supported by thousands of pillars, and its network of crossings is the most complicated in underground Paris. All these galleries are stated to be in a good state of repair, but especial care and supervision have to be exercised in the third group, several landslides having occurred recently at Issy and Clamart. A new map or chart of the subterranean galleries is in course of preparation, the prefect of the Seine having observed that the existing plans are rather defective in their topographical details.—London Telegraph

The veriscope pictures of the Corbett-Fitzsimmons fight are being exhibited in San Francisco. The manager explains at each exhibition that the pictures are not entirely flawless and that the distance of the fighters was too great from the operators and the background was bad as the clear sky was not what was wanted, etc. It would be hard to snit some people in any event. For a day or two before the fight the veriscope operators were afraid of a murky atmosphere or cloudy sky, but there never was a prettier day in Nevada than the one on which the fight occurred, yet they were not satisfied.

FROM UNCLE ALF HILL.

Pennsylvanians Disappointed in McKinley's Wave of Prosperity and are Now Talking Bryan.

Uncle Alf Hill, whom many Renoites will remember, writes the JOURNAL from Lookout, Wayne county, Penn., his present home, as follows: "I passed my 85th mile stone the 18th of June and still keep hale and hearty. I have the best garden and the best poultry in these parts. Prosperity has not struck this section yet and the goldbugs begin to think McKinley as an advance agent was too far ahead of his show. As far as business is concerned this is the worst year I have seen here so far. I believe if matters keep on as bad as at present, Bryan can carry this rock-ribbed Republican State in 1900 in a walk."

"We had a very light winter, but a cold wet month in May and crops are very backward for this country at this time of year."

A. O. HILL.

A Wedding.

A quiet wedding occurred last evening at which two of Reno's young people, Fred E. Waltz and Miss Zena Blakeslee, were joined in a life's partnership. Rev. S. Unsworth officiated and the wedding took place at the residence of the bride's parents. The relatives of the contracting parties and a few intimate friends were present and at the conclusion of the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Waltz received the congratulations and good wishes of all present.

Fred E. Waltz is a thoroughly energetic young man and one that will make his way in the world and win friends wherever he goes. He was employed by the School Trustees of this district last term to fill a vacancy as teacher in one of the departments and gave such excellent satisfaction that he was retained for the ensuing year. He is well known and a very popular young man among all of his friends.

Mrs. Waltz is a daughter of L. A. Blakeslee and is well known in Reno and Humboldt county of this State. She has been a pupil at the State University and her interest in education may be best known by the fact that she chose an educator as a life partner. Mr. and Mrs. Waltz took the train last evening for a brief tour in California and a host of young friends were at the depot to wish them happiness and success.

The JOURNAL extends congratulations.

Regarding the Accidental Death of Mrs. Johnson.

A San Francisco dispatch of the 11th says: Ex-State Senator W. M. Dixon of Warm Springs, Alameda county, is trying to ascertain the cause of the death of his sister, Mrs. Eliza Johnson, which occurred while en route to California on one of the Christian Endeavor trains. The death occurred under peculiar circumstances.

Mrs. Eliza Johnson was a wealthy widow living at Kansas City, where she had large landed possessions. She was 71 years old. On her trip she was accompanied by her granddaughter. When the train reached Reno, Nevada, the granddaughter missed Mrs. Johnson. After much telegraphing, the railroad people finally located Mrs. Johnson in a hotel at Wadsworth, Nev., where she subsequently died. How she left the train or what caused her death are questions now being investigated by Dr. Dixon and the railroad officials.

It seems that the lady was standing on the platform, or attempting to pass from one car to another and fell. No one on the train saw her fall and she was not missed for some time and a tramp reported having found her lying at the side of the track.

School and Other Monies.

State Treasurer Westerfield has been disbursing money somewhat liberally from the State Treasury this week. Tuesday he paid out $25,287 and yesterday nearly as much more for the public schools. He issued one warrant for $3,073 59 for the State University. He received from Washington and deposited in the Washoe County Bank a check for $28,000 for the University College of Agricultural and Mechanical Arts. Next year this amount from the General Government will be increased to $24,000 and the succeeding year to $25,000, which amount the University will receive annually thereafter from the Government.

At Rest.

The funeral of the late Mrs. C. B. Norcross took place from the family residence yesterday morning at 11 o'clock and was largely attended.

The funeral of the late Peter Nelson took place from the family residence on Center street and was attended by a large number of friends.

TELEGRAPHIC NOTES.

Colonel Crocker's condition was more hopeful yesterday. While the attending physicians do not admit that all danger is passed they find much upon which to base the hope that the patient will ultimately recover.

The Senate Committee on Foreign Relations agreed yesterday to report the resolution for ratification of the Hawaiian treaty without amendment. There was a general understanding that the committee should make no effort to secure the consideration of the treaty during the present session.

Stewart of Nevada gave notice of a motion to reconsider the action by which the Senate passed the joint resolution directing the Secretary of War to proceed with the construction of a breakwater, etc., at San Pedro, Cal. White of California remarked that he understood the Southern Pacific Railroad Company had some objection to the resolution and he would move to table the motion to reconsider when it came up.

The Senate spent considerable time yesterday wrangling over a motion by Harris of Kansas to proceed with the consideration of his resolution directing the Secretary of the Treasury to carry out the provisions of the act authorizing the investigation of the books, accounts and methods of railroads which have received aid from the Government. Senators Gear and Thurston led the movement to prevent the resolution coming before the Senate and they had sufficient strength to break the quorum.

General Court-martial.

A general court-martial is appointed to meet in Virginia City on July 24th for the trial of such persons as may be properly brought before it. The particular person to be tried is said to be a captain of one of the Virginia City military companies. The detail for the court is as follows: Colonel John J. Crosby, Colonel E. D. Boyle, Lieutenant-Colonel J. A. Conbois, Lieutenant-Colonel J. H. Kinkead, Major E. B. Harris, Captain W. C. Morrison, Captain D. M. Ryan, and Colonel F. C. Lord, Judge Advocate.

The officers elected by the stockholders of the Washoe County Bank for the ensuing year are as follows: W. O. H. Martin, President; G. W. Mapes, First Vice President; M. E. Ward, Second Vice President; C. T. Bender, Cashier; G. H. Taylor, Assistant Cashier.

In a revised statement the Director of the Mint credits Nevada with having produced 119,404 ounces of gold, valued at $2,408,300 in 1896. The silver product of the State for the last year is given at 1,048,700 ounces by the same authority.

FAVORABLE TO HEALTH.

Athletic Sports Indulged In to a Reasonable Extent.

Many of the athletic sports, if pursued for sport or as a recreation, are actually beneficial helps and aid to physical improvement, says the Review. Unfortunately, of late years, the practice of athletics has grown into a mania, and is likely to lead to an overtraining and practice for which the human system is not adapted, which unless checked and brought down to a rational basis may become harmful to good. Many young men seem to think that because the practice of athletics is favorable to health the more they can get of this practice the better. This is an erroneous impression, for it is as possible to overwork in athletics as it is in business and a great many young people do themselves injury by their excessive zeal in the practice of competitive exercises.

In this line of physical activity, as in any other, there is a limit to human capability and it is possible to develop the muscular and nervous systems to the detriment of the heart and lungs (1) of the digestive system. But the conditions under which athletics are usually practiced are so favorable to the maintenance of health and vigor that few persons who were sound at the time of commencing their athletic efforts have injured themselves by the practice of these vigorous exercises. It is true that a certain number of young men who were distinguished for their supremacy in certain athletic events have died young. But the number of young men who are now practicing athletic exercises in this country and appearing in public contests is very large, as many as 600 or 700 entries being recorded in some of the great city meetings.

A man from Canada called at a drug and book store in Richmond, Vt., the other day and inquired if the dealer had any indexes for Webster's unabridged dictionary. TROUT AND PICKEREL.

Something About Their Methods of Feeding, as Seen at the Aquarium.

It is easy to observe at the Aquarium the habits of fish in feeding. Some are sluggish, some are fierce, and some are sly. The trout are now fed on live kills. The killies when thrown into the tank scatter in all directions, with the trout after them like chain lightning, twisting and turning with marvelous celerity. The killies double, the trout dart after them. Rising to a bunch of killies at the top, the trout fairly make the water fly, they jump almost if not quite clear out of it as if they were turning somersaults, and down they go in again and on after the killies. It is a dashing, slashing, crawling pursuit, and in about half a minute the killies are all gone. The pickerel—how different! How silent, and yet how sudden! The killie dropped in above darts downward through the water. Not pursued, it slows down and halts in the middle of the tank to rest and to recover its equanimity after its recent dashing experience. A being removed from its home in the live-wood tank, and finally dropped into another tank as food for other fishes.

At a little distance is observed the pickerel; it has come up silently, like a long, slender little snake moving dead slow; it comes to a halt smoothly and quietly that the instant of its halt is not noticed, it is simply seen to be lying there, motionless, about six inches from the killie.

All is peace and quiet in the tank, and the killie still balances itself in the water and rests. Suddenly, with no apparent exertion of power, the pickerel darts forward. The movement is so sudden that it is at first a little awkward. The pickerel has moved until it is a little way from the killie. It is now in the killie's line of vision, and probably, with only a very hazy notion, if any at all, of how it got there.

The methods of the pickerel are very different from the killie's, however, are much the same. J. Y. Sun.

How the Ostrich Runs.

A writer who has been engaged for nine years in ostrich farming in South Africa, Mr. Conwright Schreiner, corrects a prevalent misconception concerning the manner in which these great birds run. It is generally stated that, when running, the ostrich spreads out its wings, and thus skims lightly along the ground, but, according to Mr. Schreiner, this is not correct. "When a bird really settles itself to run," he says, "it holds its head lower than usual, and a little forward, with a deep loop in the neck. The neck vibrates simultaneously, but the head remains steady, thus enabling the bird, even at top speed, to look around with unshaken glance in any direction. The wings lie along the sides about on a level with or a little higher than the back, and are held loosely just free of the plunging thigh. There is no attempt to hold them extended or to derive any assistance from them as organs of flight."

Asiatic Vines in France.

Japanese and Chinese vines have been successfully acclimated near Alencon, in northern France, in a district where grapes for wine have never been raised. Their fruit ripens in the middle of September, and produces a fair, weak wine that can be used to "cut" the stronger southern wines.
